Specific profit calculation method

The specific benefits provided by Zinrai, LLC include commissions and bonuses, which are outlined below.

How Commissions Are Calculated?

Commissions are calculated based on commissionable revenue for services. Commissions are calculated by multiplying the total commissionable earnings by the commission percentage. The commissionable revenue for each service, as well as the period for which commissions are paid, personal retail sales volume, personal sale volume and Active Members/Customers are recorded, are set forth in the Zinrai Compensation Plan, which is part of the overview document and contract document.

Zinrai reserves the right to change the commissionable revenues of its services according to business conditions. Zinrai reserves the right to adjust commissionable earnings based on backlog data. If we make this adjustment, we will do so through revisions to our Compensation Plan. Zinrai also reserves the right to reduce commissionable revenue or reduce the amount of Commissions paid on a particular Member Agreement if payment is not made in full for that Agreement.

Bonus Calculation Method Example: Commissions or bonuses are calculated and paid weekly. Each product or service is assigned a fixed Commissionable Volume (CV). The maximum calculated commission on a customer's enrollment for a Zinrai products is 55% of the CV assigned for the product or services purchase (excluding Sales Tax). Example calculation: 150 CV x .55% = $82.50.

Bonus Payment:

Weekly bonus payments are calculated and paid every Friday or the next business day if it falls on a holiday for bonuses earned in the preceding week.
